What values does it entail? Why is it worth getting to know Witold Pilecki’s attitude better? Participants will popularise their creation (works made in a team as part of the tasks) in the space of their choice: on the Internet, radio or television, so that as many Americans and / or Canadian residents as possible can discover it. During the Project, Participants receive a package of educational materials from the Institute, they participate in online meetings and perform partial tasks proposed by the Organiser which are to help them in the realisation of the final task. Communication between the Participants and the Project Organiser will take place via the Internet, using e-mail, the Google Classroom platform and Zoom.us. Within their teams, Participants communicate in a way that is allowed in their place of residence in the face of the pandemic situation.
3. Detailed rules of the Project can be found in the Guide for Project Participant published on the project website: <https://instytutpileckiego.pl/pl/projekty/the-pilecki-project>.
4. The language of the Project is English.
5. An account on the Google Classroom platform administered by the Institute will be used for communication with Participants and as a place to present individual works created by Participants.
